

Being a call-in guest on a TV program is a first class challenge. Michael Malgeri not only met that challenge but excelled to a level I've seldom seen. He is both entertaining and enthusiastic. Michael's level of expertise on his subject AND how to easily communicate complex economic concepts is refreshing and encouraging. The book and the topic literally came alive for viewers. Freedom TV's audience crosses a lot of political boundaries and Michael's engaging personality prompted call in questions from both sides of "the aisle". If I had guests like him every week, my job as host would be a lot less work and lot more fun.
